Foreword

TO be able in our future and successful years, to cherish past reminiscences and fond recollections of our happy high school days on N. H. H. S. campus:—

To recall our many friends and classmates, who by the hand of Fate have been separated from us; but who will always linger in our memory:—

To remember our beloved teachers, who have striven to instill in our hearts the desire to attain the highest goal of life:—

And to leave to our fellow students our kind and loving thoughts as a Senior Class.

This is the aim and purpose of the editorial staff of the 1929 Cat Tales.

Coach Robert L. Black

Spirit of '29

Beyond our hopes of future years,
  Beyond our mortal dreams
Of triumph, that ambition rears,
  Our Alma Mater gleams!

Before we go, we pledge to you
Dear School and classmates, too,
Our gratitude, our love, and pride.
It may be joys are few
Along the ways
Of coming days;
But still forever'll shine
Within each heart,
Though far apart,
The Class of '29.

Before us looms a road untried,
Other hands to guide us,
But with "the spirit" we've known here
Naught will be denied us.
No task too great,
Nor hour too late,
For us to seek and find;
We'll win the game
We have the name—
The Class of '29.

Cat O' Five Tales

Eighth Grade—First Tale

At last—we are here! Here in that grand, mysterious place of awe—New Hanover High School.

Classes, classes, classes! and more classes. How will we ever get to know these classes. This was an education of the mind for observance and independence. Teachers, that seemed to us previously too dignified to be human, really were one of us and treated us as if we were much older than pupils at Grammar School, and able to take care of ourselves!

Our first year here was filled with visions of all sorts of adventure, and "great careers to be" forever played before our captured eyes: future poets, authors, statesmen, people destined for great things. These were our thoughts.

Freshman—Second Tale

Having passed the dull, gloomy, first year at N. H. H. S., we then found we were no longer "the eighth graders," but Freshmen. It seems no other name by which we were classed, except Senior, held so much dignity and charm as Freshman. We began our real High School work! Many times we became discouraged with our experience in new fields of language, math, and history; but to help us forget the difficulty of these studies there was always something to take place: a football game, a basketball game, a play in chapel, or some new endeavor. Soon we would be Sophomores.

Sophomore—Third Tale

At this stage in our High School course, we were on the summit of Mount. We were now starting on the decline, moving closer to our goal. It was at this point that outside activities demanded our attention. Most of us selected some phase of outside work that best suited our talents. The Glee Club, Literary Society, Orchestra, and others, were among our selections.

Junior—Fourth Tale

At last—we were really Juniors, and just beginning to know that wonderful word that the Seniors use so much—dignity. Our sole ambition to be a Senior and to use that marvelous word "Dignity." We received our rings, and then came the Junior-Senior Banquet, to us a marvelous occasion.

Senior—Fifth Tale

How long we had looked forward to the many privileges and honors the word implies. Of all the happy days spent here, our Senior days surpassed them all. The lesson was never hard, the day was never long—each one was the last, and so with every phase of our Senior year. Under the guidance of our President, Nathan Volkman, who never tired in his responsibilities, but gave his best in them all, we reached the long anticipated event—graduation! The first in the history of our school to wear caps and gowns, the Class of '29 can write its name in the history of our school.

"The memory of what has been
And never more shall be."

Radio in the Year 1942

AS I glided to the roof of the Helen Slaughter Apartments in my new Butterfly aeroplane, recently invented by Elbert Anderson and his wife, formerly Kathleen Parker, I noticed Robert Cantwell (who had just been appointed traffic cop by Chief of Police Otis Davis) floating around in his new safety device, catching children falling out of aeroplanes. Getting out of my Butterfly, I walked quickly into the automatic elevator and dropped fifty floors to the one hundredth and second floor where my apartment was. There my autotom served lunch and handed me the noon Herald, edited by Jimmy Harper. I turned to the radio program and found that station HOH was putting on a scientific program. Placing the dial there, I was amazed to find the face of my old school chum, Lawrence Allard, appear on the screen of the television as he announced that Prof. Robert Willingham would demonstrate his theory of the tenth dimension or how to hold on to a wet bar of soap. Immediately after that Dr. Francis Stanley made a speech on the following subject: "The Informal Lesson Is More Beneficial Than the Lecture." LeRoy LeGwin and D. J. Fergus, the Fish Brothers, formally gave a specialty act. Then Lawrence announced the Heavy-weight Championship Bout between Big Boy Ad Hewlett and Kid Clarence McCoy, Hewlett weighing 195 pounds and McCoy 187 pounds. Hewlett's manager, Miss Mary Alexander, said a word, and also Miss Mary Branch, McCoy's manager. Then the physicians' quartet, composed of Stratford Donnell, Cornelia Weaver, Mildred Andrews, and Charles Coldiron, sang some melodies.

I pushed the dial half a point, and lo and behold! The room was filled with the voice of James Bordeaux, aviator adventurer, as he told of his recent flight and visit to his friend, James King, living in Frozen City, South Pole. It was rather late in the program when I got there, so I remained to hear the station announcements and be advised to buy Charles Rankin's New Evaporating Hair Tonic. Edmund McLaurin made a short speech in an endeavor to sell his True Confessions magazine. Edward Ward's real estate program came in with its characteristic number.

At station BULL the theatre was presenting Esther Fletcher costarred with Gene Edwards in a picture entitled "Hot Air," produced by Allie Mae Gerken, with such noted artists in the cast as Vernon Brown, Elizabeth Garlington, Dorothy Lacy, and Maude Sidbury. These players must be ancient by now, I thought, but people never grow old any more.

A heated debate was going on over FUSS between Mattie L. Smith and Nathan Volkman over the question of Childhood Suffrage. Of course, I sided with Mattie that the child should certainly be given the right to vote.

I had to listen to the advertisements a moment when I saw and heard Alvis Pace endorsing James Fishburne's toothpaste. Lucy Womack posed as a model for Delbert Palmer's Gown Shoppe. Josephine Ross endorsed his newest racoon coats. Harris Abelovitz and Julien Taylor were demonstrating their new invention to keep school boys' hands occupied and out of mischief.

The movement of the dial a half a point discovered the Writers' Club in the midst of a program. The president, Edward Rochelle, announced that Anne Crockett Williams would now read one of her many short stories. Annie Laurie Melton read her poem written in praise of the famous Inez Connor, another member of the club. Elizabeth Gaither read an essay on "The Value of Red Hair."

Station PILL was putting on a program by the nurses of Dr. William Allen's Hospital. Among the nurses I recognized Louise Croom, Marie Mahler, Sue Barden, Lucy Marshburn, Elsie Boynton, Edna Mae Melton, Marie Nance, Laura Bordeaux, and Mary McCrary. Immediately after their program came the theatrical announcements by Marie Trask. "From this station at 5:00 P. M.," she said, "you will hear and see the play, 'Masked Dancers,' with John Rogers, the dandy of the screen, and Elsie Johnston, Donald Sewell, Anne Lowenstein, Pearl Raynor, and Peggy Newkirk. Also at 9:00 P. M., another play, 'The Blue Flame,' with Earl Beale, the second Rudy Valentino, co-starred with Gene Mann, with such other noted players in the cast as Augusta Jurgenson and James Brothers. These plays are sponsored by the Stone and Mallard Life Insurance Company. Now we will go on to the lecture by Professor Pauline Lewis on the topic: 'Chemistry in the Home.' Professor Lewis——" Pauline was all right, but no lectures for me.

Station BALL afforded more amusement in the form of a football game. Cedric Zibelin was giving the game play by play as the television could only reflect a small picture of the team in action. But before the whistle blew, Captain Entis Robinson and his men filed before the microphone. On his team I found that I knew LeRoy Woodbury, Dan Jones, Harold May, and Jack Ohlsen. I listened through the first quarter, but found that at Station KICK the ruling sex was engaged in a football game also, with Theresa Holmes as captain. Some of her players were Jennie Meier, Isabel Sanders, Edna Pearl Shew, Pauline Lennon, Elizabeth King, Elizabeth Tomz, and Mary Louise Taylor.

More advertisements: Anne Stein and Evelyn Tolar were wearing becoming gowns for Mlle. Marguerite Child's Fashion Shoppe. Robert McGlaughon's Shoe Store was favored in a demonstration by Heywood Moore.

From Washington I obtained the Congressional report given by Mildred Vann. Here I learned that Leonora Stack and Robert Reeves had carried on a useless debate the day before on the abolition of the 18th amendment. The Bernice Farmer-Fannie O'Keef bill was still before the House. Senator Robert Bennett introduced his Economy Plan. Representatives Dorothy Atkinson and Vivian Larkin had staged a filibuster during the discussion of the David Craig amendment.

The Song Writers' Club and Glee Club combined put on a musical program with Mary B. Williams and Mildred Farrar singing a beautiful duet, accompanied by Mildred Badon at the piano. Luola Kirby, a local music teacher, had traveled to Richmond for the express purpose of accompanying Elizabeth Gilmour in her vocal selections. Florrie Woollerton, Samuel Warshauer, and Bruce Sellers played in the Song Writers' orchestra. The Unique Trio composed of Fred Flowers, Fred Smith, and Russell Smith sang some melodious selections.

At station NHHS, I came upon the Old Maid School Teachers' Convention, with such prominent members present as Virginia Jackson, Helen Jones, Antoinette Maultsby, Sarah Chesson, Eleanor Dosher, Bertha Flynn, and Elizabeth Glissen. Dr. Ruth Montford, principal of the local senior high school, and Miss Dora Marshburn of the Greensboro High School, made addresses. Miss Florence Suggs introduced the speaker of the hour, Miss Martha Morton.

The Male Quartet from the Deaf and Dumb Asylum was coming in from station FAKE. This quartet was composed of Robert Pyle, Clarence Davis, Sidney Allen, and Richard Pace.

When I found FLA, the picture of several very lovely girls appeared on the screen. However, on closer observation I noticed that they were Elizabeth Keyes, Margaret Barker, Thelma Gannon, Annie Baker, Ruby Goley, and Isabel Josenhans. Their ability to retain their youthful appearances was a mystery to me, but the puzzle was soon solved when it was announced that they were advertising the Ponce de Leon Fountain of Youth that had recently been discovered by Mlle. Zelda Gray.

Turning to station DUST, I found the Housewife Club holding its weekly meeting. The members were listed by their maiden names, else I would never have known them: Louise Lee, Lola Pollard, Evelyn Rogers, Willie Lee Snipes, Lillian Stokeley, Sarah Taylor, Mary Cannon, Margaret Nelson, Evelyn Murray, Mabel Lewis, Marguerite Bellamy, Martha Chetwood, Josephine Warlick, Hester Donnelly, Clara Lee Lennon, Lillian Stewart, Nellie Lee, Virginia Benton, Florence Grimes, and President Annie Lois Barden. At this meeting Hester Donnelly gave a talk on ART. Between this and Mary Cannon's review of her Employment Agency Work, Clara Lee Lennon rendered a very beautiful piano solo.

I had been glued to the radio all afternoon, and half an hour after midnight found me watching the beautiful ladies pose for the William Davis Department Store. Marian Marsh was exhibiting the latest fad in sweaters, while Alice Thompson put on the newest imported hats.

One o'clock A. M.: The Insomnia Club, president, Henry Nutt Parsley. Some of the famous members appeared to be George Biggs, Jane Trott, David Lifschitz, Louine Newton, and Joe Whitted.

Time I got a little sleep too, I observed. Bidding goodbye to my old friends on the air, I cut off the radio.

Last Will and Testament

We, the Senior Class of '29, being, as the final result of five seasons of grinding toil, arrived at that state of mind which may be considered the highest attainable in High School (making due allowances for natural dumbness), cognizant of our approaching demise from one such, and exalting greatly in the realization thereof, do make, declare, publish, and present this our last will and testament, declaring void any such instrument formerly made.

In which we do desire to will, bequeath, give and bestow upon those who follow after, such goods, powers, and privileges; such eccentricities, individualities, traits and misfortunes, as we may severally possess, and to devolve upon them, the Seniors of next year, such traditions as have been handed down to us, with the fond hope that they will find the burden less weighty than have we.

Wherefore:

I, Elizabeth Gilmour, leave to her who shall be chosen most bashful, my ability "to do it and get away with it."

I, James Harper, leave to the president of next year's class all my executive ability, since I believe he will need it.

I, Addison Hewlett, leave the adoration of my feminine public to Philip Hammer.

I, Dan Jones, leave my athletic disposition and ability to write to Earl Robinson.

I, Harold May, believing that next year's team will need a firm foundation, leave to several members collectively, my man-size feet.

I, Annie Laurie Melton, leave to Emma Gade Hutaff, my poetic talent.

I, Allie Mae Gerken, leave to Annette Bear, my winning personality.

I, Entis Robinson, leave my self-complacency to no one, fearing it will be misused.

I, Edmund McLaurin, leave to Jack Hammer, both my journalistic talent, and my weakness for "skirts."

We, Nathan Volkman and Ed. Ward, leave to next year's Sandspur staff, all our collective abilities, since we believe they will need all abilities past, present, and future, to keep the paper going.

I, Midget McCoy, leave to William Rankin, my cuteness.

I, Theresa Holmes, leave to Betty Divine, my weakness—a certain Rooster.

We, Jennie Meier and Lillian Stewart, do leave our ability to skip school and skim by to Dot Vine and Catherine Laughlin, hoping they'll be as successful as we were.

I, Lucy Womack, leave my expertness in driving a Dodge to William Liles, whom they say turns corners on two wheels.

I, Mary Branch, leave my cute little giggles to Margaret Wessel, who has never been known to laugh.

I, Earl Beale, leave my athletic ability and unique way with women to Roger Riley.

I, D. J. Fergus, leave my powers as a trout caller to Bradley Wooten.

I, Joe Whitted, leave my ability to "toss off a Murad" to Herbert Lynch, knowing that he desires it.

I, Robert C. Pyle, leave my appreciation of famous musicians, especially Joe Sanders, to Paul Willis.

I, Jakie Taylor, leave my love and knowledge of ancient Model T "Fords" to Chicken Dunn; may he never get the "manifold" and the "three-in-one gears" confused.

I, Marion Stone, leave my ability to keep in good with teachers to John Trask; no doubt he needs it.

I, Robt. McGlaughon, will my great activity of both mind and body to Billy Merritt; may he never die of over-exertion.

I, Bob Willingham, leave the power which I have so successfully used to explode various scientific theories, particularly that of Einstein, to Jack Poole.

I, Delbert Palmer, leave my well known "SA" (not meaning Salvation Army), "it," and other personal pronouns to Mack Pickard, whom I dare say will put it to a good use.

I, Heywood Moore, not thinking Lloyd the "type," have decided to let the renowned "Moore characteristics" graduate with me. No doubt they will be missed, especially among the feminines.

Thus do we, conscious of our impending demise, dispose of from our store of such, the above mentioned properties. Especially do we leave to the incumbent Junior Class, those articles we believe they most need.

This is our last will. All other like instruments hitherto devised, we declare void.

Signed, sealed, published, and declared this May, 1929.

THE SENIOR CLASS OF '29,

MARGARET CHILD,
HENRY NUTT PARSLEY,
ED. ROCHELLE,

Attorneys.

Football Squad

Football

The Wildcat grid machine of 1928, not content with resting upon the laurels of the '27 team, set out to blaze a sparkling trail in the football firmament. New Hanover played some of the best teams in Eastern North Carolina, but no rival could be found, with the consequent result that the Wildcats were delegated to represent the East at Chapel Hill in the intersectional game with the West for the State title. The story of that game with Statesville High will be recounted many times in the future years. It is the story of a team that could not be downed even though their opponents had a nine point advantage; and with super-human efforts they shoved across two touchdowns in the fading moments of play to snatch victory from what seemed to be certain defeat.

There were many times during the season that individual members of the team exerted themselves to the limit to justify the confidence of their hosts of admirers. Who can ever forget Brittain's run in the Columbia game that saved New Hanover from a shut out? Who can forget the two runs of Ohlsen in the Raleigh game which broke the spirit of the Capital team, and gave Wilmington the Eastern title? And surely no one can forget the runs which Ohlsen made in the Statesville game to give New Hanover its second consecutive State championship.

New Hanover placed few men on all State teams for the simple reason that the team was an eleven-man machine and not a one-man team. Let us pause to name the Wildcats of '28.

In the backfield were four men, each of whom was as good as the other. Though one probably excelled another in one department of the game, he was in turn excelled by the others in another department of the game.

"Swede" Ohlsen, quarterback, and a giant in size, was also a giant in offense and defense. The aspirations of many teams were shattered by Swede's playing, and both Statesville and Raleigh may be paged to verify this statement.

At the halves were Brittain and Donnell, the former a veteran of the '27 team and the latter a new man on the team. Brittain's work on the '28 team was much better than his work on the '27 team, and his name became a fright to the teams of the East as well as the West. Donnell played a smooth, consistent game throughout the season and might have risen to greater heights had he not been forced out toward the end of the season by infection.

Hufham at fullback was one of the shining spots on the team and acquitted himself so successfully on the gridiron that he soon was labeled with the title of "Galloping Ghost."

The line was probably the strongest ever mustered by a New Hanover coach, and to the men in the lines goes much of the credit for the team's success.

On the ends were Beale and Jones, two of the best men ever to flank a State championship team. Beale was a veteran, while Jones was filling the vacancy made by Charlie Farmer and did it in a creditable manner. The ends were always on the alert and nine times out of ten "got their man."

May, a veteran and a giant in stature, covered one tackle position, while Hanson, a new man, filled the other tackle. Both of these men opened wide holes for the backfield men and sewed up the line for the opposition.

Captain Robinson and "Baby" Snipes took care of the guarding positions in their usual manner, which was excellent. Both were veterans and presented a difficult problem to all opposing backfield men.

"Hank" Jewell, a tackle on the '27 team, covered the ball at center in '28, and his arrow-like throws always met the waiting hands of the backs at the right moment. His bulky form was one of the seven obstacles which every team tried to scale, but in which attempt only few ever succeeded.

The "subs" were in many instances equally as good as the men they replaced. The most outstanding were Woodbury, Lynch, Robinson, Parsley, Moore, and Napier.

In giving credit where credit is due one must not forget the second and third squad which gave the first team the necessary practice for development. The manager's position was also remarkably handled by Eugene Edwards. On the coaching end, "Bob" Black and Norwood Holland deserve equally as much credit as the team. It was their tireless efforts that helped bring about success. Last, but not least, the student body and the citizens of Wilmington deserve much praise for their wholehearted support of the team. Rain or shine, there was a lusty, cheering crowd at every game, and this was a great factor in determining the final outcome.

Basketball Teams

Basketball

The 1929 basketball season at N. H. H. S. carried on something rarely seen in high school circles. By the winning of the State basketball title the school had to its credit four major sports championships in a period of two years. The first team, composed of four letter men, was acknowledged by all as the best high school quint in the Old North State.

The team was at a loss when Coach John Harris, commander-in-chief of the '28 Champions, was unable to lead the team this year. His position was ably filled by the versatile Dr. (or if you please), Coach Hampton. whose faithful service was largely responsible for the Wildcat victory.

The season, going the way of all good basketball seasons, met with some defeats; these were handed to the team in the early season by Charlotte and the Davidson Frosh. These two successive losses served to shake the hopes of some few skeptics, but the majority held faith and later received exactly what they expected, the State championship in basketball. Prior to the championship series the team handed overwhelming defeats to various eastern Carolina teams, and the decisive victory at Chapel Hill showed the superiority of the east.

Earl Beale, a veteran of two previous seasons, captained the team this season. He was outstanding as a forward and always showed up in the score box as one of the highest scorers of the game. He played a stellar game always and led the team with the ease of a college captain. Playing the opposite forward was the scrapping Dan Jones, who, shifting from guard, played a game that is only expected from State champs.

At the guard position Harold May loomed as a serious handicap to any opponent who might seek to score against old N. H. H. S. Harold's big frame and sensible playing served as a backbone for the basket tossers of twenty-nine. We should also pause to think of his work as manager which aided greatly in a successful season, and his work, although futile, in attempting to enter our school's team in the University of Chicago tourney. With a striking contrast to Harold in size but the same dependability as a player, the other guard position was held down by little "Buddy" Davis. As one of the cleverest floor workers ever seen on a New Hanover quint, Buddy was always alert in an attempt to offset an opponent's offense. His playing in the State title game in the Tin Can at Chapel Hill was given praise by sports writers throughout the State.

The position of center, left vacant by the graduation of ex-captain "Swede" Ohlsen, was capably filled by Bill Rankin, who, though it was his first year on the squad, made the first team and was an outstanding player. One witnessing a Wildcat affray would never pick "Rank" as the team rookie. He shared the honor of high scorer with Captain Beale on many occasions.

In reviewing a season one should never overlook the ones who "took the gaff," namely, the second team. At guard Tienken, Parsley, and Wm. May replaced the first string and played a creditable game. The lanky Lawther was the substitute center and showed wonderful material for next year's Wildcats. Merritt and Moore were the substitute forwards. Chas. Napier, a utility man, was forced out of the game in the early season because of injuries.

The team as a whole represents one of the finest ever put out by our school and we are justly proud of them. Coach Robert Black, director of athletics, worked with the team and assisted Coach Hampton in his success.

Girls' Basketball

The Girls' Basketball team of ole N. H. H. S. made a good showing this year and seemed to have a good time in the bargain. Many good games were on their schedule and the team split 50-50 with all opponents—that is, the girls won a game for every game lost.

Among those on the list of games were: New Bern, Fayetteville, Southport, Elizabethtown, and Florence, S. C. Last but not least, the team of N. H. H. S. played the Faculty of N. H. H. S. We have not the right to call it a "scream," but it was really that, no other adjective could be employed to portray that game. (We hope that the members of the "Faculty Team" are not still sore—by that we don't mean mad at anybody!)

The team was coached this year by Miss Lucille Sasser. Miss Sasser knows her basketball, as the opponents of N. H. H. S. found out when they played a "Sasser-coached" team.

The floor work was good this year and due to hard grilling, the pass work was excellent, baffling, sometimes, the other team. The basket for the forwards seemed a magnet and many goals were rung this year. (Our girls aren't telephone operators—for they didn't ring the "wrong number.")

This year's team was led by Katherine Lacy, as captain. Captain Lacy did some "tall" playing, too. Dorothy Farmer, a petite member of the squad, was probably the star forward. The team had as its business manager, Allie Mae Gerken. The whole squad worked in unison and the coach for next year has "plenty good" material to work with.

All in all, the girls' basketball team of N. H. H. S. had a successful season, many good trips and many good scores!

Out of the many girls that came out for basketball the following made the squad:

Katherine Lacy
Mary London Noe
Inez Connor
Dorothy Farmer
Octavia Smith
Allie Mae Gerken
Rachel Carroll
Katherine Biggs
Mary Allen Keels
Jane Trott
Nancy Weaver
Eleanor Solomon

Track

As we go to press the track season of twenty-nine is still in its infancy. The team is again under the capable coaching of Dave Sinclair, who last year led a team that finished second at the State meet at the University of North Carolina, a point and a half behind the winners.

Because of the loss of Captain-elect Ohlsen in mid-year graduation, the team elected Bill Rankin to lead this year's team. Randolph Mathews was chosen as manager.

As to the team's possibilities this year, we mention first the captain, who last year won the half-mile and placed second in the high jump. Bennett, a former Wildcat captain, is the best prospect for the mile run and that is some prospect, for Bob is outstanding among the State's best milers.

E. T. (Speed) Hancock is running the sprints in lightning time this year and on occasions in former years has been bested only by Charlie Farmer, last year's captain, in various meets. Gene Smith, who with Hancock, has this year already won the State indoor title in his respective event, looms as a wonder on the hurdles.

On the quarter-mile, Herbert Lynch is the school's best bet. Herbert won the quarter at the Davidson meet this year and his time shows that he will figure when the points are added at Chapel Hill.

Others of the team that promise the school a fine track team are: Earl Robinson, a half-miler and broad jumper; Relmon Robinson, a pole vaulter; Donnell, who runs the quarter-mile; Frank Smith, a hurdler; Bruff, on the sprints and broad jump; and Kulken, who won the high jump at the Davidson meet this year.

ORGANIZATIONS

The Sandspur

The introduction of a motion for the establishment of an official school paper came at a time when the spirit of New Hanover High School's student body was being refreshed and invigorated by the capturing of the State football title in 1927. The mind of the student body was receptive to the proposal which was made by Nathan Volkman, a member of the Junior class, and sponsored by the Student Council, for the establishment of a school paper. After the adoption of the proposal, immediate election of a staff took place and Nathan Volkman was elected to direct the destiny of the paper, which was named The Sandspur. The hardships and struggles of the first staff were in many instances nerve-racking, but The Sandspur was successful in its first year, mainly through the aid and advice of Mr. M. E. Milner, who volunteered his services as faculty advisor.

The beginning of the school year in September, 1928, found three members of the old staff back and these three, Anne C. Williams, Philip Hammer, and Nathan Volkman, formed the nucleus for a new staff which edited The Sandspur for the whole year. Due to the resignation of Philip Hammer as managing editor in mid-year, Jack Pool was appointed to this position and filled it very capably. Ed Ward, a prominent member of the Senior class, undertook the business management of the paper and was successful in his efforts. He was aided by Jack Hammer, Paul Willis, and Ada Cole, who served as advertising managers. Nathan Volkman assumed his former position as editor-in-chief and was ably assisted by Jack Pool, Anne Williams, and Edmund MacLaurin. The other members of the staff were as follows: Feature Editor, James Harper; Sports Editor, Dan Jones; Assistant Sports Editor, LeRoy Woodbury; Exchange Editor, Erwin Jaffe; Chief Reporter, Annie Laurie Melton; Reporters, Ethel Williams, Edith Morton, Inez Connor, Genevieve Corbett, and Russell Smith. The faculty advisors were: M. E. Milner and Miss Aurelia Gill.

The Sandspur is gradually gaining the recognition and patronage of the whole student body of the High School, and it is almost certain to predict for it many more years of successful existence. Its worth has already been proven, and with the wholehearted support which it should get in the future, the paper will grow in size and in value. The Sandspur has made great gains in popularity in the short time of its existence and is bound to become the pride of every New Hanover student before many years have passed.

JOKES & ADS

Marion Stone: When will there be 25 words in the alphabet?
Louise Wood: I don't know.
M. Stone: When U and I are one.

* * * * *

Miss Gill: Can you tell me how nuts grow, Elizabeth?
Elizabeth Keyes: No ma'am.
Charlotte Schadt: On trees.
Elizabeth Keyes: Any monkey knows that.

* * * * *

Ruth Davis: Have you seen Lawrence Lee?
Hattie Johnson: No. Have you seen Jack Hammer?
Ruth Davis: No.
Hattie Johnson: Well, then, let's go home for lunch.

* * * * *

Miss Martin: What did Samuel Johnson do at college?
Dan Jones: Made "Whoopee."

* * * * *

Miss Brock: Roy Tienken, you are going down in History some day.
Roy Tienken: What have I done?
Miss Brock: That's just it, you haven't done anything.

* * * * *

Mrs. Kastner: Have you done your outside reading?
M. B. Williams: No ma'am, it has been too cold.

* * * * *

A. Hewlett: Should bank be written with a capital?
Herbert Lynch: Certainly, a bank is no good without a large capital.

* * * * *

Earl Beale: Do you know that girl?
Strat. Donnell: Oh! just a nodding acquaintance.
Earl Beale: What do you mean? Nodding.
Strat. Donnell: Nodding doing.

* * * * *

Robert Pyle: Whoopee, I own hell.
James King: Howzat.
R. P.: Mr. Hampton just gave it to me.

* * * * *

Jack Pool: What do you think about love?
Elizabeth Tomz (drawing away suspiciously): Say, are you a tabloid reporter?

* * * * *

A. Stewart: Oh Ed, you have egg spilled all over the front of your coat.
Ed. Ward: That's all right; I look well in anything I eat.

* * * * *

Dan Jones: If Mr. Hampton doesn't take back what he said to me today I'm going to quit school.
June Mallard: What did he say?
Dan Jones: He said I was expelled.

* * * * *

Guilford Oldham: You don't love me as much as you used to. Haven't I always played fair with you?
Jean McCaig: Yeh, you're fair, but I like 'em warmer.

* * * * *

Robt. Willingham: I have called to see about getting a job.
Boss: But I do all the work myself.
R. W.: Perfect, when can I start.

* * * * *

Senior: Why did you keep looking at that girl's evening dress?
Freshman: I wanted to see what it was all about.

* * * * *

She: Let's play house.
He: That's such a kid's game.
She: Not the way I play it.

The Symphony of Success Plays On!

Are you in tune?

Your success as a business organization requires you to be in tune with today.

To be in tune—or to secure the harmony of effort so necessary for success—there must be frequent, rigid inspections of every instrument employed. If there is not complete synchronization, displeasing discords will arise in the song of Progress.

The major place which PRINTING occupies in any successful business program requires that it be given extraordinary consideration—must be selected with due regard to its prestige-creating ability through attractiveness in appearance and adaptability to its purpose.
